INVESTMENT PERFORMANCE REPORT

The West Warwick Pension Board,
On Behalf of the Town of West Warwick

September 2018
Domestic Equity

- US Equity markets continued to rally in September, boosted by strong economic data and consumer confidence levels not seen since the early 2000’s, including greater than expected non-farm payroll figures indicating strong job growth and improving ISM non-manufacturing figures, indicating robust service sector growth.
- The Federal Reserve did not surprise anyone by raising rates again at the end of September, further indicating their confidence in the strength of the US economy.
- The end of September brought the creation of a new sector, the Communications sector, which is a combination of stocks from Technology, all of the Telecom sector, and Consumer Discretionary. The new sector boasts names such as Facebook, Google, Comcast, and Disney.
- Much of the gains made in the domestic indexes for the month came from the large caps, particularly the DJIA (+1.97% in September). The Dow hit record highs during the month of September, matching similar records that were achieved by the S&P 500 and NASDAQ earlier in the year. Contrary to what has played out for most of the year, the NASDAQ and Small Caps were laggards for the month. Growth and Value continue to diverge in performance, although both were up for the month of September. Growth outperformed Value 0.56% to 0.20%.
- The S&P 500 finished September up 0.57% and YTD was up 10.51%, DJIA up 1.97% for the month and 8.83% YTD, the NASDAQ was down -0.70% for September and is up 17.48% for the year.
- The Russell 2000 was down -2.41% for the month and remains up 11.51% for the year, the Russell 1000 Growth was up 0.36% for the month and was up 17.65% YTD, while the Russell 1000 Value was up 0.20% for the month and is only up 3.92% for the year.

International Equity

- International markets followed the momentum of US markets by posting gains in September, though soft economic data, the potential negative effects of increased tariffs and a hard “Brexit” continued to weigh on investor minds.
- China’s economic growth has been slowing, creating a drag on EM markets that posted another negative month. (-0.53%, -1.09% for the QTR) despite attractive valuations and fundamentals. Japanese markets ended the quarter on a high note posting gains on 3.04% for September and 3.68% for the quarter. Much of the gains in Japan can be attributed to increased job growth and positive inflation numbers.
- While Japanese and US economic outlook remains positive, the Eurozone is facing further headwinds from the lowest levels of business and consumer confidence in over a year. Despite this, European indexes finished the month and quarter positive (+0.30% and +0.80%) getting a strong boost from the UK for the month but gaining in the rest of Europe for the quarter.

Fixed Income

- US Fixed income markets rallied last month with the Treasury yield curve declining for 2yr to 30yr durations. US Barclays Aggregate was up 0.64% for the month but remains in negative territory (-0.56%) for the year as overall interest rates have risen with the tightening of the Fed’s monetary policy.
- The Federal Reserve voted to raise rates by another 0.25% to a new range of 2.00-2.25% Market-implied probabilities indicate a 70% chance that the next rate increase will occur in December 2018.
- US Treasury yields rose up the curve as 10-year yield reached 3.06%, while the 5-year rate reached 2.98%, a post-crisis peak before settling at 2.95% for the close of the month. The 20 year closed at 3.13% and the 30 year rate ended the month at 3.19%.
- Investment-grade corporate issuance for September priced over $126 billion. Spreads performed well in spite of heavy supply as investment-grade corporate spreads tightened 8bps to close at 106bps—the tightest level since April 2018. High-yield spreads tightened 22bps to close at 316bps.

Economics

- The synchronized growth from last year provided a basis of hope in 2018 for a rebound in productivity due to an increase in capital expenditures (cap-ex). After seeing a solid rise in capex in 2017 of 7.4% according to JPMorgan, the hope for this year was a continuation of that trend. Unfortunately, capex has grown by 5.0% during the first half of 2018, and is predicted to slide to 4% in Q3. Most of the deceleration is coming from EM, but with recent positive data coming out of countries such as the US and Japan, we are looking for a rebound heading into the end of the year.
- In the US, four key readings in the jobless claims hit historic lows. Initial claims fell 3,000 in the September 15 week to 201,000 with the four-week average down 2,250 to 205,750. Both readings are at new 50-year lows. Continuing claims in lagging data for the September 8 week fell a very sharp 55,000 to 1.645 million with this four-week average down 20,000 to 1.692 million. Both readings are at new 46-year lows.
- In Europe, real GDP growth was revised to 2.0% in 2018 and 1.8% in 2019, both rates down 0.1% from their June projections, and unchanged at 1.7% in 2020. At the same time, inflation is seen at 1.7% over the entire forecast horizon, matching last time’s prediction. Economic risks are still thought to be broadly balanced, but ECB President Draghi did acknowledge increasing downside global risks due to heightened volatility in emerging markets and, in particular, the rise in protectionism.
- In Asia, several Chinese economic reports released in September, portend a potential slowdown. Industrial output and retail sales for August were higher than expected but real estate investment slowed and growth in fixed asset investment dropped to a historic low, raising risks to China’s economic outlook as the trade conflict with the U.S. escalates.
